

QUIZ

Five girls, five ah-mazing personalities—
which member of the Clique are you most like?

1) It's the first day of school—time to get ready! Without even opening your closet, you know you'll wear:

a) Something super-cute and super-trendy, like your new Alice & Olivia puff-sleeve blouse and Elie Tahari sabine skirt. You're already a style icon, and you can't disappoint your ah-doring fans!

b) A pair of Sevens and your favorite Nike track jacket. You're not exactly Sporty Spice—hello, ten years ago—but no need to get all girly when you're headed to practice after school anyway.

c) A fitted Ralph Lauren Black Label button-up with slim-fit jeans—totally classic. But just because you dress conservatively doesn't mean you act that way! Hello, boys...

d) Your new Pumas, faded James jeans, and a fitted white tee. All you care about in the morning is a bowl of Cheerios—not outfit drama.

e) Black Theory pants and a black Vince boatneck tee. Hey, dark colors are flattering!

2) You're at a party, and your crush is here! What do you do?

a) Act like you're having a blast and make him come to you. Like an ah-dorable boy-moth to a totally smokin' flame, no boy can resist you.

b) Start a totally innocent party game, like Twister... or spin the bottle... and see if he wants to be your partner.

c) A smile and a wink is all you need. He won't be able to resist your coy glances, or your new strawberry-favored Glossip Girl gloss. Yummy.

d) Your game plan is simple: if you see him, talk to him. Boys are like TiVo. All they need's a little basic programming.

e) Pelt him with Cheetos. When he turns to look, give him a flirty, come-hither glance. The way to a man's heart is through his stomach, right?

3) It worked and you got his attention. Not only that, he asked you out! What's your idea of the perfect first date?

a) Dinner at Le Fancy Restaurant. What could be better than having your date's rapt attention, and an entire wait staff at your beck and call!

b) Front-row tickets to a baseball game. Nothing says love like hot dogs and home runs. Okay, maybe not, but at least it's a guaranteed good time.

c) Ballroom dancing. Super hot but still totally proper! Just watch the hands, buddy.

d) An impromptu bike ride with a quick stop at the candy store. Simple and sweet. Just like you!—and hopefully him.

e) Movie night. It's dark in there so no need to obsess over your outfit or if you've got Milk Duds in your teeth. First dates are exhausting!

4) It's your best friend's birthday. You get her:

- a) An iPhone. Nothing but the best, for the best. Plus this way she can report back to you with any important sightings. Go to it, spies!
- b) Your favorite Adidas short-shorts. Okay, so she's not as sporty as you are, but they're great for everyday. And everybody likes to show a little leg.
- c) A gift certificate to Saks and a personal escort for the trip—you! Always thinking of others...
- d) A playlist of all her favorite songs—you even steal her iPod and upload them when she's not looking. It's something only you could have made for her.
- e) Godiva truffles. It's her birthday—time to indulge a little. Plus, she's good at sharing! Deeee-licious.

5) Your motto is:

- a) "It is better for a leader to be feared than to be loved." Machiavelli definitely was on to something.
- b) "It doesn't matter if you win or lose, it's how you play the game." Most sports metaphors work in real life, too.
- c) "Every girl should use what Mother Nature gave her before Father Time takes it away." Use it or lose it, sister!
- d) Um . . . You don't really have a motto, you sort of just do things and have faith that it will all turn out okay.
- e) "Life is short, eat dessert first." Then, buy flattering black pants.